Summer Games 2012 Theme

Song Lyrics,

by Kyle O'Grady

Ignite The Light

It feels like summer
And I can hear
The voice of everyone
On an even field
With golden dreams to be won

For a first place runner
For the victor yields
The spoils, there can be only one
So for a podium shields
The fight of your life has begun

Oh and we've come so far
To show them what we're worth
To be the strongest, fastest, best under the sun
We don't mind who you are
As long as it's worth fighting for
And you can tell yourself that you're not the only one
When it's all said and done
The dust will settle and the days will pass
We'll all be winners, first or last

But for now, we'll raise a torch
Cause we light the night
When we ignite the light

The sound of thunder
Echoes in my ears
My heart is racing but it's almost over
A feeling of wonder

Female Softball

The gold medal game for female softball took place today between Avalon (CB Central) and St. John's North. There was a great competition between the girls and results of that game will be posted on the games webpage.
